

Classification: Stephen Kelly

Stephen read an essay about Band-aids and how he helped his brother who needed a kidney. First of all, in his world, Band-aids make everything better. From an early age Stephen had avoided injury by being cautious, but when he did get injured, a Band-aid always healed things quickly. His brother, as an adult, got a diagnosis of kidney failure and the whole family got the blood test to see if they were a match, that is, all but Stephen. Over the years, Stephen had developed a fear of needles which was overcome with the help of medication and thank God, a Band-aid. With his blood draw complete, found he was a match...for the rest of the story, you'll have to ask Stephen.

Program: Jim Rathburn presents: James Olcott,
Twin Cities Trumpet Ensemble

We were treated to the performance by the Twin Cities Trumpet Ensemble. The ensemble is the only regularly performing 24 piece trumpet ensemble in the US. According to James, there are many trumpet players in the Twin Cities, but they generally stick to their 3 or 4 piece cliques, so the size of this ensemble is an anomaly. The musicians showed the great range of the trumpet. They love to do outreach events and regularly perform for school groups, a 9/11 remembrance, and events that raise money like one they did to fund research on ataxia. Jim and rest of the players gave a demo on improvisation and noted (for Ken Baltzer) how much easier it is for drummers to play in the right key. The Twin Cities Trumpet Ensemble sponsors many philanthropic causes and many times sponsorships are matched by the audience (hint hint). James and the group showed great passion for the joy of sharing their gift of music. For more information on the Twin Cities Trumpet Ensemble go to: www.tctrumpets.org

Thank you to the group members who entertained us: Jim Olcott, Scott McCullough, Neil Baumgartner, Don Odegaard, Greg Wyman.

I’ve Been Workin’ on the Railroad
I’ve been working on the railroad
All the live-long day.
I’ve been working on the railroad,
Just to pass the time away.
Don’t you hear the whistle blowin’,
Rise up so early in the morn.
Don’t you hear the captain shouting,
Dinah, blow your horn!
Dinah, won’t you blow, Dinah, won’t you blow,
Dinah won’t you blow your horn!
Dinah, won’t you blow, Dinah, won’t you blow,
Dinah won’t you blow your horn!
